Timely Indicator of Economic Activity – Monthly growth In September and October

- Today, INEGI released its Timely Indicator of Economic Activity (IOAE, in Spanish) for October, as well as revised estimates for September.
- September’s forecast showed mixed revisions, with the sequential print higher at +0.3% m/m due to a lower base, but with annual figures much lower at +2.8% (sa) amid signs of additional weakness.
- For October, they see +0.6% m/m (1.9% y/y sa). Although a base effect explains part of this, we consider there are several supportive factors, including better epidemiological conditions and higher mobility.
- With the revision, the figure signals a more modest GDP deceleration than the 3Q21 preliminary print, contracting 0.1% q/q (4.9% y/y). After this, we consider activity will resume its recovery trend through the remainder of the year.

Signals of less weakness in 3Q21. INEGI released its Timely Indicator of Economic Activity (IOAE in Spanish). With September’s updated estimate (see following section), it seems the impact to economic activity might have been lower than originally thought. Specifically, the latter implies a decline of about 0.1% q/q in 3Q21 GDP (+4.9% y/y), slightly better than the -0.2% of the preliminary release. After this, signs for the end of the year seem stronger, with signs of an acceleration in the recovery, which in turn is consistent with our call of 5.7% y/y growth in full-year 2021.

Mixed, but overall lower, revisions for September. The forecast stands at +2.8% y/y (range: 1.6% to 4.0%), 219bps below the first estimate (sa). In sequential terms, this implies +0.3% m/m, higher than the previous estimate on a more favorable base. The adjustment is explained both by lower dynamism in industry –with weakness in construction and manufacturing–, but better in services, now at +0.5% (previous: +0.1%). According to our calculations –based on INEGI’s estimate– activity would have grown 2.5% y/y nsa.

Modest rebound in October. The forecast is 1.9% y/y (range 0.7% to 1.6%), which implies +0.6% m/m. Industry would rebound at the margin (+1.1%), consistent with signs of higher dynamism globally and locally, albeit with activity still limited. Meanwhile, services would climb 0.8%, aided by an improvement on the pandemic driving an acceleration in consumption. We estimate +1.1% y/y with original data, with a more challenging base effect, on top of being skewed lower by one less working day in the annual comparison.

Determination of Target Prices

For the calculation of estimated target prices for securities, analysts use a combination of methodologies generally accepted among financial analysts, including, but not limited to, multiples analysis, discounted cash flows, sum-of-the-parts or any other method that could be applicable in each specific case according to the current regulation. No guarantee can be given that the target prices calculated for the securities will be achieved by the analysts of Grupo Financiero Banorte S.A.B. C.V. since this depends on a large number of various endogenous and exogenous factors that affect the performance of the issuing company, the environment in which it performs, along with the influence of trends of the stock market, in which it is listed. Moreover, the investor must consider that the price of the securities or instruments can fluctuate against their interest and cause the partial and even total loss of the invested capital.
