Financial Markets Daily

Main drivers for the financial markets today...

- Negative stock markets, government bond yields down, and USD up, following pressures in Asian bourses amid speculation of US funds exiting region assets due to possible investment restrictions in Hong Kong and China. Moreover, markets await the FOMC's decision tomorrow and corporate reports today
- Regarding economic figures, in the US, the Conference Board consumer confidence indicator for July will be released. We estimate it at 123pts, below the previous 127.3pts. June's durable goods report will also be published
- Majority Leader Schumer signaled that the Senate could stay in session into the weekend, cutting into its upcoming summer break to get the infrastructure proposal done. This happened after Republicans rejected Democrats' offer aimed at resolving provisions including funding for highways, bridges and water, among others
- In Mexico, INEGI released the GDP-proxy IGAE for May, rising 0.6% m/m (+25.1% y/y). By sectors, industry climbed 0.1% m/m, with services at +0.8% m/m, highlighting lodging (5.4%) and transportation (2.2%). Primary activities expanded 8.4%. INEGI also published June's trade balance, posting a US$762.0 million surplus. Inside, exports rose 0.2% m/m (29.1% y/y) with imports at +0.3% m/m (52.3% y/y), positive considering the deterioration in terms of the virus
