Financial Markets Daily

Main drivers for the financial markets today...

- Stock markets and crude oil to the upside, government bond yields and USD with losses following the Bank of Japan's decision to maintain its accommodative stance. In addition, investors will be watching for signals from members of the Fed today and the performance of corporate reports
- The Bank of Japan, against market expectations, kept its monetary stance unchanged, with its target interest rate at -0.1% and reaffirming its commitment to yield curve control. After this, the Yen depreciates. At the WEF, Bank of France Governor, Francois Villeroy, said that it is too soon to talk about the next ECB hike. However, he clarified that the 50bps announced by Lagarde, last December, are still valid. He reiterated that the peak of the hiking cycle should be reached by the summer
- On economic data, the agenda is focused on US figures for December. We highlight retail sales -expecting -1.0% m/m-, industrial production -anticipating a contraction of 0.1%- and producer prices, with market consensus pointing to a slight deflation. Finally, attention on Fedspeakers Bostic (Atlanta), Harker (Philadelphia) and Logan (Dallas). In the UK, headline inflation eased further in December; however, the core accelerated marginally. Given this, doubts about upcoming actions by the BoE persist
- In other news, Ukraine's Interior Minister died in a helicopter crash east of Kyiv. At least 18 people died, while the cause of the accident has not yet been determined

Asia closed mostly higher, the Nikkei increased 2.5% and the Hang Seng rose 0.5%
- On the corporate front, in the US, out of the 6 S&P500 companies releasing their results today, only 2 have released their figures below expectations

The MXN extends yesterday's gains by trading at 18.63 per dollar, representing an appreciation of 0.1% and its best level since February 2020
- Crude-oil futures gain 1.8% on average despite the IEA saying that supply will exceed demand by 1MMbbl/d this quarter but that demand will increase in 2H23 due to greater dynamism in China. In metals, the bias is positive and nickel stands out printing a 4.4% gain

Corporate Debt

- Mexarrend informed that it does not expect to make the next payments of its ST issuances and its preferred notes in order to manage its financial situation and maintain its liquidity. The company will increase reserves regarding its past-due portfolio during 4Q22 for an approximate amount of MXN 100 million, and will write off assets for an approximate amount of MXN 300 million
- Also, as a result of an ongoing review regarding Mexarrend's portfolio and other assets, management discovered errors in its financial assets records. To correct these errors, the company expects to write off financial assets for an approximate value of MXN 655 million
- Finally, the company will seek to initiate a dialogue with the bondholders and preferred notes representatives in order to reach a comprehensive solution to its liquidity restrictions
