

MXN is the third most traded currency in EM

November 4, 2022

- The Bank for International Settlements (BIS) released its triennial survey of foreign exchange global turnover. According to the BIS, trading volume in global foreign exchange markets increased 14% in April 2022 vs. the survey conducted in 2019, reaching an average daily amount of US$ 9.8 trillion
- The average daily trading volume of the Mexican peso amounted to US$ 114.2 billion, up 2.7% vs. the 2019 survey. The MXN remained as the 16th most actively traded currency globally and is the third highest among emerging markets –according to the IMF classification–, only behind the Chinese renminbi (CNY) and Indian rupee (INR). The MXN lost 20bps of market share, from 1.7% in 2019 to 1.5% in 2022
- The US dollar (USD) remains the world’s most traded currency, with a share of around 88% of global transactions. It is followed by the euro (31%), Japanese yen (17%) and British pound (13%). These first four places in the global ranking have not had significant changes in terms of market share. It is important to note that the sum of market shares is 200% since any foreign exchange transaction involves two currencies, such as the peso-dollar, euro-yen, etc.

*According to the classification of countries used by IMF in its latest WEO

- China's accelerated economic growth has been one of the main drivers behind the rise of the renminbi –also known as the yuan–. In addition, financial authorities have implemented various measures to increase trading volume. Among other factors, this led to its addition to the International Monetary Fund's currency basket in 2016 –known as its 'official currency', the Special Drawing Right (SDR). Since then, the CNY has climbed strongly in the global rankings, reaching an average daily turnover of US$ 526.4 billion in 2022. It is worth remembering that it ranked 9th less than a decade ago (in 2013), with a market share of 2.2%. In this survey, it moved up to 5th place, with a 7.0% share
- Focusing only on EM, CNY has consistently gained market share. In the last three years it rose 12.4pp to 36.1%, just over a third of the total. Meanwhile, INR is in second place with a 8.4%, share, with MXN in third place at 7.8%

- Trading in the Mexican peso reflects the adoption of international best practices to offer transparent, reliable, and consistent exchange rate conditions. The Mexican currency has become the main variable for absorbing foreign shocks. In our view, its high liquidity, full convertibility, and the existence of a wide range of risk-hedging securities are key characteristics that allow Mexico broader and lower-cost access to global markets. Finally, responsible macroeconomic management and a rules-based exchange rate policy are also very important pillars behind investors' high confidence in the local currency
- According to Banxico, 82% of operations are carried out abroad. This ratio decreased at the margin from 83% in 2019. The MXN has a wide market depth as transactions occur 24 hours a day around the world under good operating and liquidity conditions. Due to the above –among other factors–, it is frequently used as a hedge against fluctuations in emerging markets. This, in turn, is an additional factor behind its high turnover in international financial markets. As shown in the following table, 97.7% of the average daily turnover in foreign currencies in the local market is in dollars

Determination of Target Prices

For the calculation of estimated target prices for securities, analysts use a combination of methodologies generally accepted among financial analysts, including, but not limited to, multiples analysis, discounted cash flows, sum-of-the-parts or any other method that could be applicable in each specific case according to the current regulation. No guarantee can be given that the target prices calculated for the securities will be achieved by the analysts of Grupo Financiero Banorte S.A.B. C.V. since this depends on a large number of various endogenous and exogenous factors that affect the performance of the issuing company, the environment in which it performs, along with the influence of trends of the stock market, in which it is listed. Moreover, the investor must consider that the price of the securities or instruments can fluctuate against their interest and cause the partial and even total loss of the invested capital.
